

Deacons:

- hold up service as an inescapable response to the Gospel;
- encourage all God's people in their service of God inside and outside the church;
- are advocates for justice, sharing in the church's justice ministries; standing beside people who are disadvantaged or oppressed, encouraging others to work for justice and calling the church to costly action;
- are carers who offer support and encouragement, standing beside those who suffer, and encouraging others to use their caring gifts;
- are pioneers serving on the fringes in areas of life where social, economic and political changes are exposing new needs which are frequently remote from the experience of church-goers;
- are educators whose special task is to educate the church on justice issues and community needs;
- are enablers who encourage other people to recognise and use their gifts of service;
- are called to be prophets prepared to challenge injustice and offer alternatives;
- are bridge builders between the church and the community

DEACONS IN THE UCA

Celebrating 20 years in 2012

In 1991, the National Assembly of the Uniting Church in Australia (UCA) resolved that the diaconate be renewed. In 1992, the first Deacons were accredited (those who transitioned from Deaconess), followed by ordination later that year for those who had trained for the diaconate. In 2012, the UCA celebrates 20 years of the Ministry of Deacon.

The UCA recognizes two expressions of ordained ministry: the ministry of the Minister of the Word and the Ministry of Deacon. Together with the whole people of God, they share in the mission of God in the world.

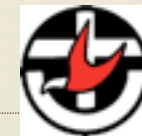

'Deacons in the Uniting Church are called: to be, along with the scattered members of the congregation, a sign of the presence of God in the everyday world; to be especially aware of the places in the community where people are hurt, disadvantaged, oppressed, or marginalised and to be in ministry with them in ways which reflect the special concern of Jesus for them; to recognise, encourage, develop and release those gifts in God's people which will enable them to share in the ministry of caring, serving, healing, restoring, making peace and advocating justice as they go about their daily lives.'

DIAKONIA

IN THE

UNITING CHURCH IN AUSTRALIA

Through the Ministry of Deacon, the UCA is responding creatively to God's call to ministry and mission in our time, by providing men and women who exercise leadership in service and justice.

DEACON PLACEMENTS

Deacons work in community programs including counselling and health care; new housing projects; advocacy in social welfare; rural resource ministry; justice and education ministries; children's and family ministry, and with youth and young adults. Some Deacons work in congregations with a focus on diaconal ministry and fostering the diaconal ministry of the whole people of God; Deacons may also have roles in Synods and Presbyteries, and serve with ecumenical bodies and agencies. Deacons also exercise leadership in pioneering ministries and new ways of being church.

Rev Jason John has pioneered eco-faith communities in SA & NSW

Rev Michelle Cook with Yalga Binbi Aboriginal students.

DEACONS IN CHAPLAINCY

Deacons are involved in a wide range of chaplaincy placements including tertiary chaplaincy, prison chaplaincy, defence force ministries, aged care chaplaincy, mental health chaplaincy, sports chaplaincy, Frontier Services, schools ministry, hospital chaplaincy, disability ministry, and ministry with the arts community.

Rev Angie Griffin serves as an Aged Care chaplain.

Rev Aimee Kent served as an EAPPI Volunteer in Israel, with Palestinian communities.

DEACONS IN CROSS-CULTURAL AND MULTI-CULTURAL MINISTRY

Deacons provide leadership in cross-cultural and multi-cultural ministry, including working with partner churches in international mission; resource roles with UAICC; and serving in placements with other agencies focussed on relief, development and advocacy.

Rev Sue Langhans meets with an English conversation class.

Rev Andy Calder works as a disabilities chaplain and also leads CPE & SFE classes.
